Course work provides students with knowledge about the fundamental structure of the educational process. The field of education encourages critical thinking, intellectual, activity, and active student participation. The university has internship contacts with elementary and secondary school districts. There us a growing demand for educators in today’s job market. Teacher requirements, combined with growth in the student population, have led to an increased need for quality teachers, administrators, school psychologists, and counselors. A degree from the School of Education will allow you to enter the job market ahead of the crowd with the education, experience, and contacts you need.
